What's new in Boratium Wars:

ers: A.J. DeLaGarza, Kenwyne Jones In a clear change of face for L.A. Galaxy, Ireland international A.J. DeLaGarza will play in central defense, writes Daniel Hamilton in the LA Times. In his first MLS start, the 23-year-old was paired with Baggio Husidic at left back. DeLaGarza has already been working with newly-appointed Galaxy head coach Bruce Arena and this move comes hot on the heels of his successful loan spell at Club Tijuana in Mexico. There, he has played in the important games and has started all but one match. I like the hustle that A.J. has.

DeLaGarza only came to the club last June. Although he won't remember a time before the Galaxy, the Homegrown star had no intentions on sticking around for too long. "I feel lucky. I'm very, very happy with it. I feel like I've really gained a lot. I feel like I've done a lot as a person and as a player. I feel like the Galaxy were great to me. I feel that the Galaxy is a great family. ...I feel as though I've gained a lot in my time here. I'm glad that I was able to accomplish my goals and I'm glad that I moved forward with the club," he said. While DeLaGarza is unafraid to play big minutes against anyone, he now found himself being shoved into a starting role. If it is good for the kid, well then, great, right? Lineup changes, then, can be made if need be and Bruce Arena seems prepared to do that. Starting position for DeLaGarza will not be the issue per se, but rather the defensive responsibilities he will have to be up to. Barring a Gareth Barry-type injury, DeLaGarza will need to be a constant face in the middle of Galaxy's defense. "I think [I've gained] more experience," DeLaGarza said after the match. "It's good to know a little bit more of the personalities. It's good to see everybody. It's always easier when you know your teammates. It's not hard to know [other] players that

Legend of Luca is a side-scrolling action-platformer with RPG mechanics, made as a tribute to the Japanese RPG series of the same name. In Legend of Luca, you play as a young man who is suddenly sent on a mission to save his hometown from an evil dragon that has fallen under the control of a corrupt ancient empire. Over the course of your journey, you will become immersed in the world of Luca, picking up new weapons, customizing your own, and learning new and exciting fighting techniques! Key Features:

- Customizable character: Every aspect of your character can be customized-from a new skill tree, to new weapons, customizing your combat style, to even digging up treasure to add to your growing inventory of weapons. Take your favorite character from the game, then customize his/her appearance and equipment to fit your play style and desires!
- Acrobatic Combat: Being a three-dimensional platformer, combat requires a lot of dancing around! Leap, dangle, flip, avoid using your tools as weapons in order to win against your enemies and collect some loot along the way!
- Stunning and Rich Graphics: Take a step back into a vast and ancient world of magic and mysticism-glittering with gorgeous textures, psychedelic colors, and intricately detailed characters!
- Four Game Modes: Play through the story mode, or test your skills in the Challenge mode, set up your own Survival and horde run challenges, or even create your own game using the editor.

What's New in Version 1.0.2:

- New challenge mode
- New npc encounter
- UI improvements
- Swapping weapons to dash through boss waves
- Various other bug fixes

pone.0170397.ref054]. A reduced level of FGF2 could have a negative effect on human bone health by decreasing the proliferation of osteoblastic progenitor cells as already pointed out by some authors [[@pone.0170397.ref055], [@pone.0170397.ref056]]. Concerning BMMSC, our results revealed that CO₂-Hyp reduced Fgf2 expression and inhibited cell proliferation, migration, and osteogenic differentiation. The effect of CO₂-Hyp was similar to that of TGF-β1 [[@pone.0170397.ref057], [@pone.0170397
